"Christmas gift suggestions:
To your enemy, forgiveness.
To an opponent, tolerance.
To a friend, your heart.
To a customer, service.
To all, charity.
To every child, a good example.
To yourself, respect."

-- Oren Arnold

Twas the week before Christmas here at Wills Chiropractic
The Drs were busy trying not to feel hectic
The folders were filed in the cabinet with care in hopes that the patients soon would be there

The Doctors were a lying on chiropractic tables with visions of wellness and bodies that are stable
With Heather in her Maternity garb and Jason in his tie
Had resigned themselves to another long day with a sigh

When out in the lot there arose such a clatter
I sprang from my desk to see what was the matter Away to the window I tripped and I ran and saw a large family getting out of a van

The lights in the lot shown down on the snow gave a funky fluorescent glow to objects below When what to my wondering eyes should appear but a miniature sleigh and eight tiny reindeer

With a little old driver so bent and so stiff
It took me a moment to figure out it was St. Nick More rapid than eagles his courses they came
And he groaned and he moaned as he cried out his pains

My neck, and my shoulder, my head and my feet, my back and my hips, my wrist and my knee
I fell from the porch and I slipped down the wall
Now Dash away! Dash away! Dash away all!

So down to the parking lot the courses they flew all the reindeer were hurting and St. Nicholas too

And then in a twinkling I saw in the lot
The limping and straining and all were distraught
As I drew in my head and was turning around In the front door St. Nick came with a bound!

He seemed in much pain, from his head to his foot a kink in his neck and his knee went caput
A bundle of toys he had flung on his back and he looked to be struggling to put down that sack

His eyes were in anguish, his mouth all askew
His back all hunched over yet somehow he knew He received a referral from an elf at the shop who told him Dr. Jason could make the pain stop

Dr. Wills took St. Nick back to room #1
To figure out where the problem had begun
He studied the x-rays where things went awry
Then set straight to work without batting an eye

Filled with compassion for those reindeer of eight
Dr. Heather went to the parking lot for their pain to abate
With activator in hand and a smile on her face
She adjusted and comforted with style and grace

Jason spoke not a word as he worked on St. Nick testing and adjusting so painless and quick
The smile for St. Nicholas returned and he said “Thanks Dr. Jason you've eliminated my dread”

He sprang from the table with gladness and delight
And away they all flew, off into the night
I heard him exclaim 'ere he drove out of sight
“Thank you Drs. Wills and to all a good-night!”
